Dear Harold,

The dynamic duo of Wecht & Morrow are at it again. Morrow is just about passing himself off as the Senate Select Committee's chief investigator; now he's writing a book on the RFK assassination.

To fit the entire interview on one tape, I cut out the intro, which was just a few excerpts from a JFK memorial album, & a brief "commentary" by Wecht. In response to a woman's question as to what motivates him to continue speaking out on the assassination, Wecht went into a digression on the "Democratic System" & how he wants to see integrity restored. (No one asked him how much his desire for publicity motivated him). O well, some people will believe anything they're told. I have to admit to being aggravated over the fact that every time Wecht goes into his speech about being grateful for all the work done by the "pioneers" of assassination research, he never once mentions your name. (Although he does seem to take great pride in having nicknamed CBS's latest special reports on the JFK assassination whitewash I & II). What a rip-off artist!

I really hate to hear that you & Jim are already having problems with the new committee. With the job he did on the Yablonski murders, I really felt Sprague ~~~~ would at least make an honest effort. This is definitely our last shot at an actual investigation. I doubt that we'll ever again be as close as we are now to exposing everything; people lose interest so fast. I would hate to think that this whole thing is doomed before it really gets off the ground. Keep the pressure on them to do it right.

Hi to Lil.

Best,
Karen
